TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Maryland was one of the original thirteen states. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 1,449,661, which represents an increase of 154,315, or 11.9 per cent, over the population in 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Maryland from 1790, the first Federal census, to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase in each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole.

Counties.—Maryland has 23 counties, while Baltimore city, which is organized under a separate and independent government with a separate system of courts, occupies the status of a county. Of the 23 counties, 13 show a decrease in population since 1910 (see Table 1). The large decrease in Baltimore County was due to the annexation of part of its territory to Baltimore city in 1919. The decreases in the other counties range from three-tenths of 1 per cent in Frederick County to 11.4 per cent in Kent County. Part of Anne Arundel, as well as part of Baltimore County, was annexed to Baltimore city since 1910, these annexations constituting the only changes in county boundaries during the decade.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state in 1920 is 9,941 square miles, and the average number of persons to the square mile is 145.8 (see Table 1); in 1910 and 1900 the averages were 130.3 and 119.5, respectively.

Minor civil divisions.—The political divisions into which counties are subdivided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The 23 counties of Maryland are divided into 290 election districts, for which the population is presented so far as reported separately (see Table 2), while Baltimore city is presented by wards. There are also 121 secondary divisions of the counties, comprising 8 cities, 5 villages, and 108 towns. One city comprises the whole of 1 election district and parts of 5 others, while 2 cities and 2 towns are co-extensive with the election districts in which located.

Cities.—Maryland has 9 cities—Baltimore, which has the status of a county, and the 8 referred to above as forming secondary divisions of the county. Baltimore, with a population of 733,826, is among the 12 cities of the country having more than a half million inhabitants. The state contains no other large city,

Cumberland, with 29,837 inhabitants, and Hagerstown, with 28,064, being the only other cities with a population of over 25,000. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows the population of the 5 cities in Maryland having 10,000 inhabitants or more in 1920, at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside of such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification is based upon the population of each place as it existed at each census. The proportion of the population of Maryland living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 49.8 per cent in 1900 to 50.8 in 1910 and to 60 in 1920, showing a large increase during the last decade.
